Panavision takes the Bait in 3D

BAIT, a 3D action thriller currently in production on Australia's Gold Coast, has been described as "taking the killer shark movie to the next level." According to John Virtue, Head of Sourcing and Operations at Panavision, the movie's equipment supplier and systems integrator, it's easy to see why. Virtue said, "Before the movie got anywhere near shooting we did an enormous amount of testing and research with Producers Todd Fellman and Chris Brown and their crew. As a result, the film's production values are very high indeed." Click here to read more.

Panavision wins 'Services and Facilities Producer of the Year' Award at the recent SPAA Independent Producer Awards 2010

This year the 2010 SPAA Producer of The Year Award for Services & Facilities was presented to Panavision.

Martin Cayzer, Panavision Managing Director said, "We are proud and honoured that SPAA members, our clients, have recognised our contribution to the local industry over the last 45 years. It's great for our staff to see that the service we provide is an integral part of a production."

The SPAA Independent Producer Awards are awarded to SPAA members who have produced an outstanding contribution to the advancement of the independent production industry.

Further to this achievement Panavision was also nominated in Encore magazine's inaugural Awards program in the category of 'Service Company of the Year'. The Encore Awards were conceived to recognise the work of screen industry companies, rather than specific projects or individuals.

Panavision was proud to be recognised and congratulates Rising Sun Pictures as recipient of this award.
